Rule of Thirds

Think of your camera's viewfinder as a tic-tac-toe board
Place your subject center of where any of the lines intersect

POWER of this Technique:

- Off-centered subjects can seem more dynamic than centered subjects
- Off-centered subjects can seem full of life and less boring than centered subjects
- Shots look well-balanced and interesting
- Helps to eliminate unwanted background distractions
- Helps tell the viewer what you want them to look at as your focus
